MALAYSIAN CUISINE

One of Asia's most vibrant countries, Malaysia is a melting pot of Asian cultures with Malay, Chinese and Indian influences interwoven with the ethnic tribes of Borneo - creating a microcosm that's uniquely Malaysian.

With such diversity to offer, Malaysian cuisine is a reflection of its identity; combining locally sourced herbs and spices with varied cooking styles inspired by the cultures that define it - creating an unique explosion of flavours that's robust and palatable.

Here at Papparich, we specialise in Malaysian cuisine and we're devoted to take you on a gastronomic journey through Malaysia with our carefully crafted food.

麵條 Noodles

Noodle dishes served at PappaRich borrow heavily from the Malay and Chinese influences. Whether to slurp on something soupy or to chow down on wok-fried noodles, there is something for everyone on the PappaRich Noodles menu. Soup bases are prepared daily using only fresh ingredients and are left to simmer for hours so they are rich in flavour. Wok-fried and dry noodles with gravy are made to order to ensure utmost satisfaction to the palate.
